He moved to Binghamton, NY. At age 22, Dmitro lived on Holland St. and was employed by Endicott Johnson Shoe Company. He met and married Annie Lewkowech in 1915. His job in the shoe factory was classified as a "pullover" in the Misses and Childrens plant, according to the 1920 census. He also worked in the Victory Plant. (A pullover describes the process of shaping the leather over the toe of the shoe)

Dmitro first lived and boarded with Harry Charnetsky, and later on Jeanette Street, Binghamton when he married Anna. After she died, according to the 1920 census, he and Sophia and Anna, his daughters, lived with the Nicholas Pufky's in Johnson City. Dmitro remarried. He and Anna Charnetsky moved to Zoa Avenue, Johnson City where they bought a house.

Dmitro was one of the founders of St. John's Ukrainian Church in Johnson City.

Dmitro was a heavy smoker and he died of pneumonia, a complication of lung cancer.

He had a half sister, Mary Demkovich, who also lived in the Tri Cities area..
